What can I do with an Economics Degree?

Giles Doy, Department of Health
20th November 2014
My career

• Graduated from RHUL in 2008; joined Government Economic Service later that year
  – Largest recruiter of economists in the UK, around 1600-1800 in central government.

• Started at Department of Health, as an Assistant Economist

• Promotion to Economic Adviser in January 2013

• Economists are in demand in the civil service.
  – Ministers value the contribution of analysts – through the use of evidence and analysis.
  – Two of last three Heads of the Civil Service are economists by academic background.

Seasonal Flu Immunisation

CATCH IT
Germs spread easily. Always carry tissues and use them to catch your cough or sneeze.

BIN IT
Germs can live for several hours on tissues. Dispose of your tissue as soon as possible.

KILL IT
Hands can transfer germs to every surface you touch. Clean your hands as soon as you can.

You wouldn't put off picking up your medicine.

So why put off the flu jab?

If you have a health condition, even one that is well-managed, catching the flu could cause you serious complications, like pneumonia.
Ask your GP or pharmacist about the flu jab now.
It's free because you need it.

IF YOU KNEW ABOUT FLU YOU'D GET THE JAB.
The flu is not a severe cold. It's clever. It continually evolves and mutates, so this year's virus may be different from last year's. If you suffer from certain chronic illnesses or you are 65 or over, you are especially at risk. Contact your local GP for this year's free flu jab.
What I’ve done with my degree

• Some of the concepts applied:
  – cost-benefit analysis,
  – market failure and government intervention,
  – regression analysis and testing

• No macroeconomics used, but other Government departments (e.g. HM Treasury) will use it heavily
What’s best to focus on for your career?

- Get the basics right; know your Micro, Macro and Quantitative Methods
- Do a dissertation
- Communication is key
- Do topics you like doing
- Take opportunities when they come.
